

THE WEXNER FOUNDATION

THE TORAH OF LEADERSHIP

March 24, 2022 | Erica Brown | Finding Our Way Forward

Becca Thomas: Erica's source sheet for today:

Elka Abrahamson: I am now a glamper

Judy Oberlander: sharp contrast in colours of the clothing

Elka Abrahamson: Did we dedicate today's learning to Erica's amazing work to support refugees? You can read more about it in our Wexner Leads that you will receive today. Its remarkable (as is Erica)

Jon Cardin: Waiting patiently in line

Scott Stone: Moses and Aaron aren't looking at the water in the picture.

Jon Cardin: Maybe it was a trick by Moses to charge and challenge others to step up when he gets to a place where it is way out of his comfort zone

Scott Stone: He doesn't

Scott Stone: He doesn't really mean it?

Leora Zabusky: Totally and utterly burnt out... nothing left to sustain resourcefulness and creativity

Scott Stone: He's selling

Scott Stone: Anytime we are about to run out of money. We being any organization I am helping lead

Becca Thomas: Erica's beautiful and thoughtful reflections:

Alan Brown: Why did you go. Its a serious question. Did anyone ask for help? A lesson to wait until asked? Like Moses did ask.

Scott Stone: Its also helpful to take stock of what you actually have. what resources are in hand

Elka Abrahamson: Scott yes - reminds me of the famous scene from the Apollo movie when they dump everything on the table available to save the astronauts. A GREAT leadership clip

Scott Stone: Yes!

Carrie Harris: When everything falls apart, sometimes its an opportunity to do something new.

Elka Abrahamson: REB Yogi

Goldie's PC: Sometimes we create our own bixes and we need someone to open the side
